EVERYBODY'D BE IN JAIL IF BLUE LAWS WERE ALL ENFORCED

There'd Be No Skating on Sundays, No Cabs or Autos to Hire, and Women Who Use Rouge Would Be Arrested in Bunches.

Commissioner Bingham's edict closing the Sunday theatres, coneert halls, dance halls, moving-picture shows, museums; and shutting down of restaurant orchestras, recalls to the people of New York that they are indeed a law-ridden community.

/ If Commissioner Bingham should take it upon himself to enforce all the laws and corporation ordinances he could make Sunday a dead day in reality, and also make it very uncomfortable for the average citizen on a weekday.

CLARA BLOODGOOD DRIVEN TO SUICIDE BY CARE AND FEAR

Haunting Worry that She Would Be Forced to Close Her Tour Cause of Society Actress's Deed in Baltimore Hotel.

Worry over the prospect of having to close her tour in "The Truth" was the direct cause of the suicide of Glara Bloodgood, the actress, at the who had inserated him. Many of the angry stop-parent, he denied that he Hotel Stafford in Baltimore last night. While the Shubert Theatrical Company nominally owned the production, Clara Bloodgood bore 80 per cent, of the financial responsibility, and she was a woman who took her responsibilities seriously.

Her tour had not been uniformly successful. She knew that the dull holiday season would reduce the profits, and she dreaded the inevitable closing of the company and the consequent idleness of the actors and actresses in her support. Her husband, William Laimbeer, was in this city, unable to help her financially and all her money, amounting to $15,000, was tied up in the Knickerbocker Trust Company.
